Jessica Taylor is a CAAS Consulting Executive providing outsourced accounting and advisory support to organizations across a variety of industries. She works closely with clients to deliver timely, reliable financial information and practical insights that support informed decision-making and long-term growth.

In her role, Jessica leads client engagements and advisory teams, providing CFO- and controller-level consulting tailored to each organization's financial and operational needs. She partners with leadership teams on financial strategy, reporting, process improvement, internal controls, financial modeling, and other initiatives that strengthen decision-making and support growth. Jessica also helps guide clients through complex matters such as system optimization, accounting transitions, audit readiness, and transaction-related projects.

Jessica began her career in assurance before moving into industry, where she held accounting and finance leadership roles. She later returned to public accounting as a manager in the CAAS practice, bringing experience from both the client and advisory sides of the profession.

Jessica earned her Bachelor's degrees in Accounting and Finance from Arkansas State University.
